

An update from the Nether Loirston Growers

We are delighted that our entry to the Gardening Scotland Pallet Garden competition at Ingliston in June got a Gold certificate, thanks to Jim, Martha and Pat. The theme of “Pallet to Palate” showing vegetables and fruit which had been “brought on” was a winner.

We’ve made it through the first season on the community garden and the allotments are looking excellent with tatties and veggies coming along really well. As a group we’ve been working on keeping the weeds at bay in the community areas and clearing up stones and rubbish in an attempt to keep the site and the surrounding area tidy.

We are very grateful to everyone who has helped out with getting us to this stage and extend a very warm thank you to all passers by for your kind comments and encouragement.

We will be having an open day during the autumn and further details will be advertised nearer the time.
