Allotmenters, with the help of friends, have been progressing our site development work. Through hail and sun work went on to build plinths to support our water storage tanks which each hold 1,000 ltrs. Rainwater is harvested from the roofs of the steading building.

A retaining wall was also constructed around our compost storage area. Thank you to Allotment friends Mike and Raymond for all their hard work.

Meanwhile, taking advantage of dry spells between the hailstorms and thunder pelts, seeds and seedling planting was going ahead on the plots. Tatties were covered to protect from frosts but are well away now. Fruit bushes are showing signs of producing a good crop again this year. Allotmenters, as is our nature, are optimistic of tasty and healthy crops as the season progresses.
