107 (Aberdeen) Squadron Celebrates Officer Training Success

Cadets and staff at 107 (Aberdeen) Squadron would like to congratulate Pilot Officer McKenzie and Pilot Officer MacDonald for the successful completion of their Officers Initial Course.

The course takes place at the prestigious RAF College Cranwell and prepares Officer Cadets for the leadership and managerial qualities they require to be a Junior Officer. During the course, Officer Cadets must demonstrate professionalism and leadership skills, in order to become a role model and guide for cadets and junior staff.

Leadership and initiative skills were assessed at the Officer and Air Crew Training Unit which is used to train regular service personnel seeking a commission in HM Forces. The course which takes place over seven days pushes the Junior Officer through a series of early mornings and late nights and encourages communication, personal and professional development and brings out the best in each individual.

Pilot Officer McKenzie said "I thoroughly enjoyed my time at RAF College Cranwell on my Officers Initial Course. I learnt a lot and feel much more confident about undertaking my role as an Officer in the Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve Training Branch"

107 (Aberdeen) Squadron is recruiting now.
