

Charleston School News: Dear Residents,

Hello. I am Laura Fowler and I am currently acting Head Teacher at Charleston School. My substantive post is at Tullos School where latterly I was Depute Head Teacher. I have settled into my new post and have been overwhelmed by the welcome I have received from everyone at school and in the wider community. I am very much enjoying being in Cove. Please introduce yourself if you see me around and about.

In the short time that I have been here I have learned of Cove's thriving community, which the school is very much part of. Along with a group of pupils I was invited to the opening ceremony of the Heritage Stones. There I heard a potted history of Cove from Wendy Sutton as she told us of the significance of the stones and the pictures to be depicted on them.

The children at school have seen the fruits of their labour from the allotment they tend under the guidance of Mr Pirie on a Friday. They have brought back some huge onions and neeps which would make a great pot of soup! We are very grateful to Mr Pirie for his input. The children really enjoy their trips to the allotment.

It has been a busy term. We held a successful "Meet and Greet" parents' afternoon where the children shared their learning and introduced their teacher to their parents. The feedback from all concerned was very positive.

Our Parent Council and Events Team have organised a busy programme. Already we have had a good Bingo night, attended by many of our families. There will be many more great events to support over the course of this school year, to which you are welcome.
